Beaver Island Brewing Company has always been driven by a "community first" mentality. With the current state of the nation leaving many feeling frustrated or afraid, Beaver Island has put their community first model to the test by absorbing their profit and cutting prices during this time of crisis. This move will allow our team to continue working while ensuring our retail partners, and the great people of our community, have access to Dam Fine Beer at an affordable price. Which we hope will help the many who may be struggling financially feel a sense of normalcy in a world that otherwise feels unsettling right now.

Presented with the opportunity to sell growlers curbside from the taproom or deliver beer to the general public, Beaver Island has decided to forgo that option and partner with local stores in an attempt to help ease the economic impact on our customers and this great community that has given us so much. Thank you to all the people who have helped us grow and prosper over the years, we know we all look forward to the time where we will feel more stability on our journey together.

Cheers,

Matt Studer & Nick Barth
